Class Goals: Be able to paint with watercolors using a copyright-free reference photo on their own. Gain a basic understanding of color theory and be able to mix and use colors to achieve desired results in a watercolor painting. Learn the Golden Ratio and its importance to composition.

Class structure/agenda: Students will take a provided line drawing and copy it onto their watercolor paper. Following the instructor, step by step, students will complete a painting in a single session.

Class 1: Discuss briefly the Golden Ration and how it applies to two dimensional art. Divide and tear 22" x 30" sheets of watercolor paper into quarters, or use a sheet from your watercolor pad. Required Materials:
I use Holbein watercolors for their rich color and high pigment content. All paints listed are available online at Cheap Joe’s, Jerry’s Art-A-Rama, or Sarasota Art and Frame in Saba Plaza on U.S. 41. If you choose Holbein, the following colors are needed: Hookers Green, Olive Green, Bright Violet, Phthalo Blue (red shade), Shell Pink, Cadmium Red Deep, Yellow Ochre, Raw Umber, Burnt Sienna, Quinacridone Gold, Cadmium Red Orange and Cadmium Yellow Lemon.

Other supplies are available at Hobby Lobby, Michaels or online. If Holbein paints prove too expensive, students will need van Gogh Permanent Red Deep, Permanent Blue Violet, Permanent Lemon Yellow, Gamboge, Phthalo Blue Dark, Hookers Green, Olive Green, Raw Umber and Burnt Sienna. In addition, you will need Winsor Newton Opera Rose. Do not bring commercial tray sets with dry blocks of paints as they lack the brilliance to produce quality work.
