

The background features two classical columns on either side, with green vines hanging from the top. The text is centered over a light gray background.

Myra's

OASIS

Resort Cart Design

Emma Sutton-East Rowan High School-11th Grade

Concept Treatment

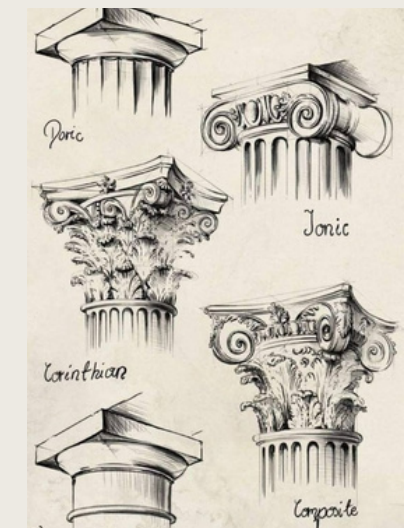

As you wander through the bustling Agora of Ancient Greece, you can smell the scent of wines waft through the air, mixing with the smell of honey sweets, combining into a delicious aroma. As you dodge carts and weave through crowds, a bright and welcoming environment surrounds you. Joyous and raucous conversations drift through the air, conversations telling faint stories of trade and adventure.

When nearing an alley however, things seem quieter. Whispers of an old seller who now calls this alley home seem to warn you. Someone who encountered a monster, yet lived to tell the tale. As you look around, you see a sign by draped fabric that reads "Myra's Oasis." It is an oddly inviting sight, in the midst of tense rumors of surrounding townsfolk. Promises of fine quality goods catch your attention, so you push past the fabric, nervous to encounter the other side. When you push the fabric back, you are greeted by a welcoming sight. In the midst of warm-glowing oil lanterns stands Myra. She stands proudly as stone makes up parts of her skin, including a patch on her face. Smiling warmly, she waves you over, offering a goblet of her special "Serpent Soda." The bubbly liquid seems to comfort and cool your insides at the same time, putting you at ease with notes of ripe peaches and melons native to the area. As you look upon her wares, she tells tales of her frightening encounter with a Gorgon.

Goblets are sat on the table, each decorated in a special Grecian design with a handful of designs to choose from, and a lid is included for adventuring purposes. Once customers choose a goblet, Myra can pour them a glass from the soda machine located on the back of the cart. As you look over the cups, you may spot an animatronic snake named Ladon resting in one of the fern vases. If someone crosses the motion sensor of Ladon the serpent, he will hiss, and lift his head. Though you may be scared, Myra assures you, Ladon is simply protective of the cart. Oil lanterns with LED flame bulbs light the cart up on each column, providing a scenic lighting.

In this mythical space, danger and wonder blur into a amazing mix of adventure. Every story and sip help to remind you of the magic of the world around you, prompting new memories and amazement.

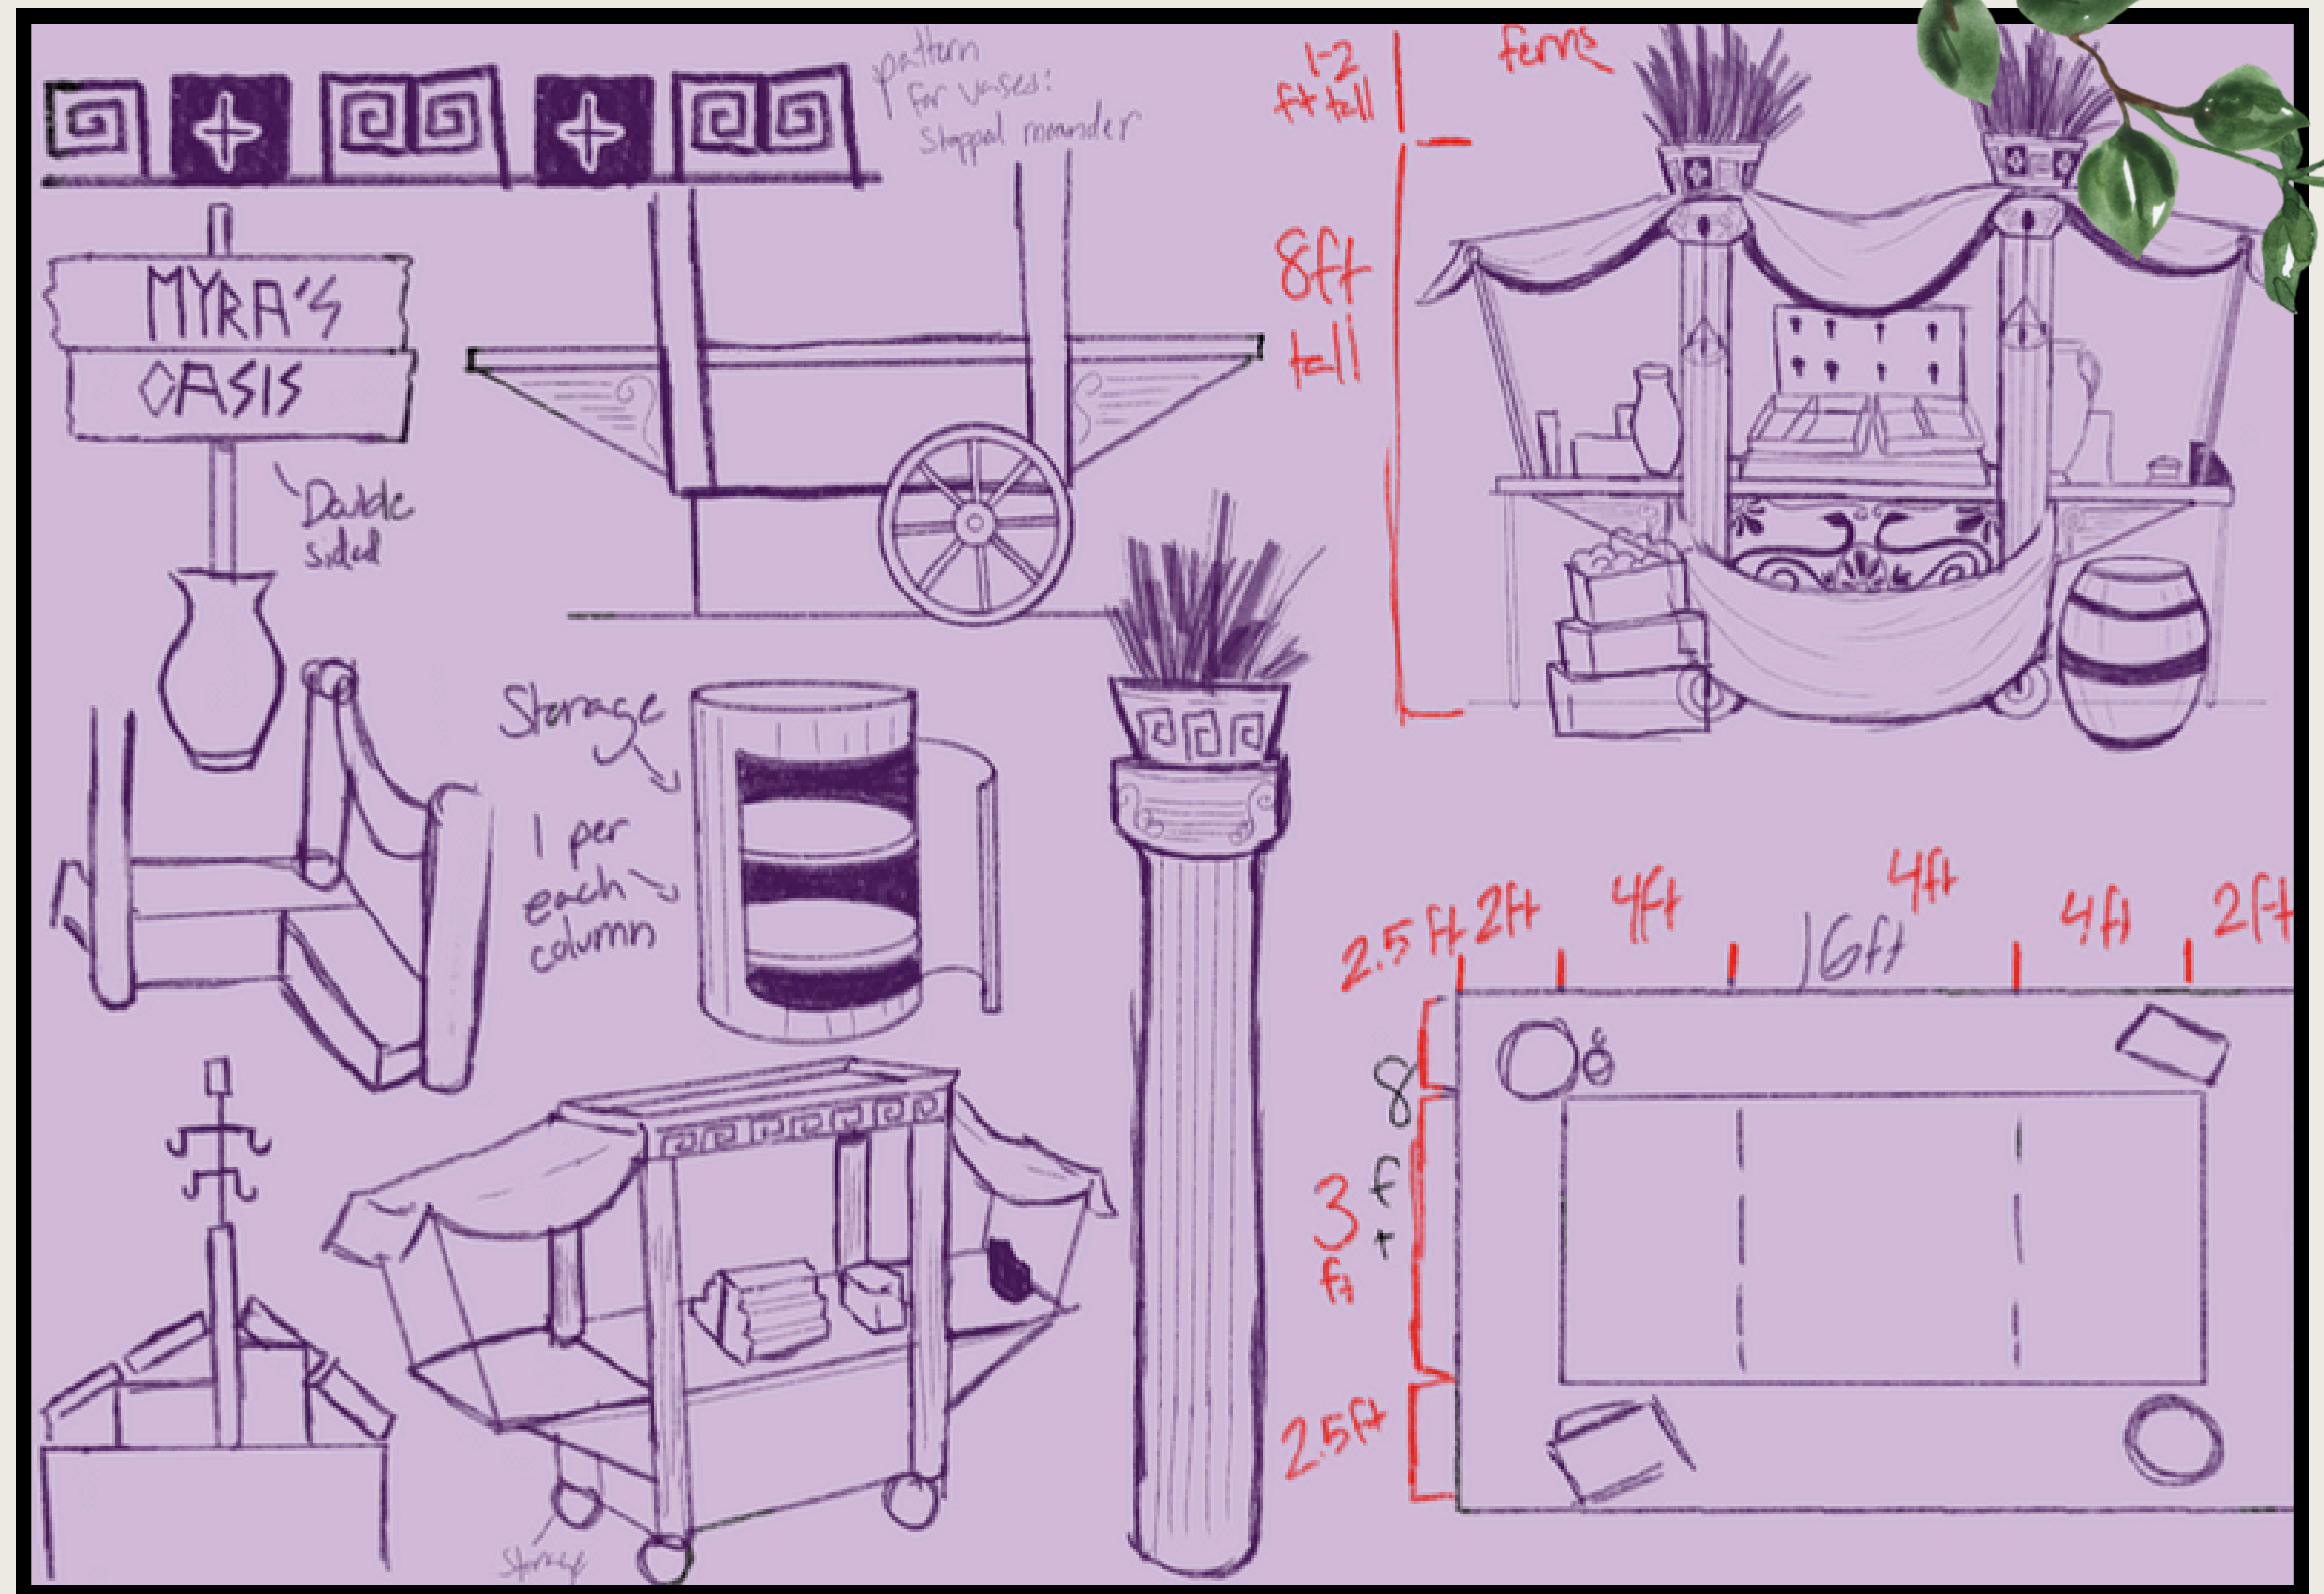

Inspiration

Sketches

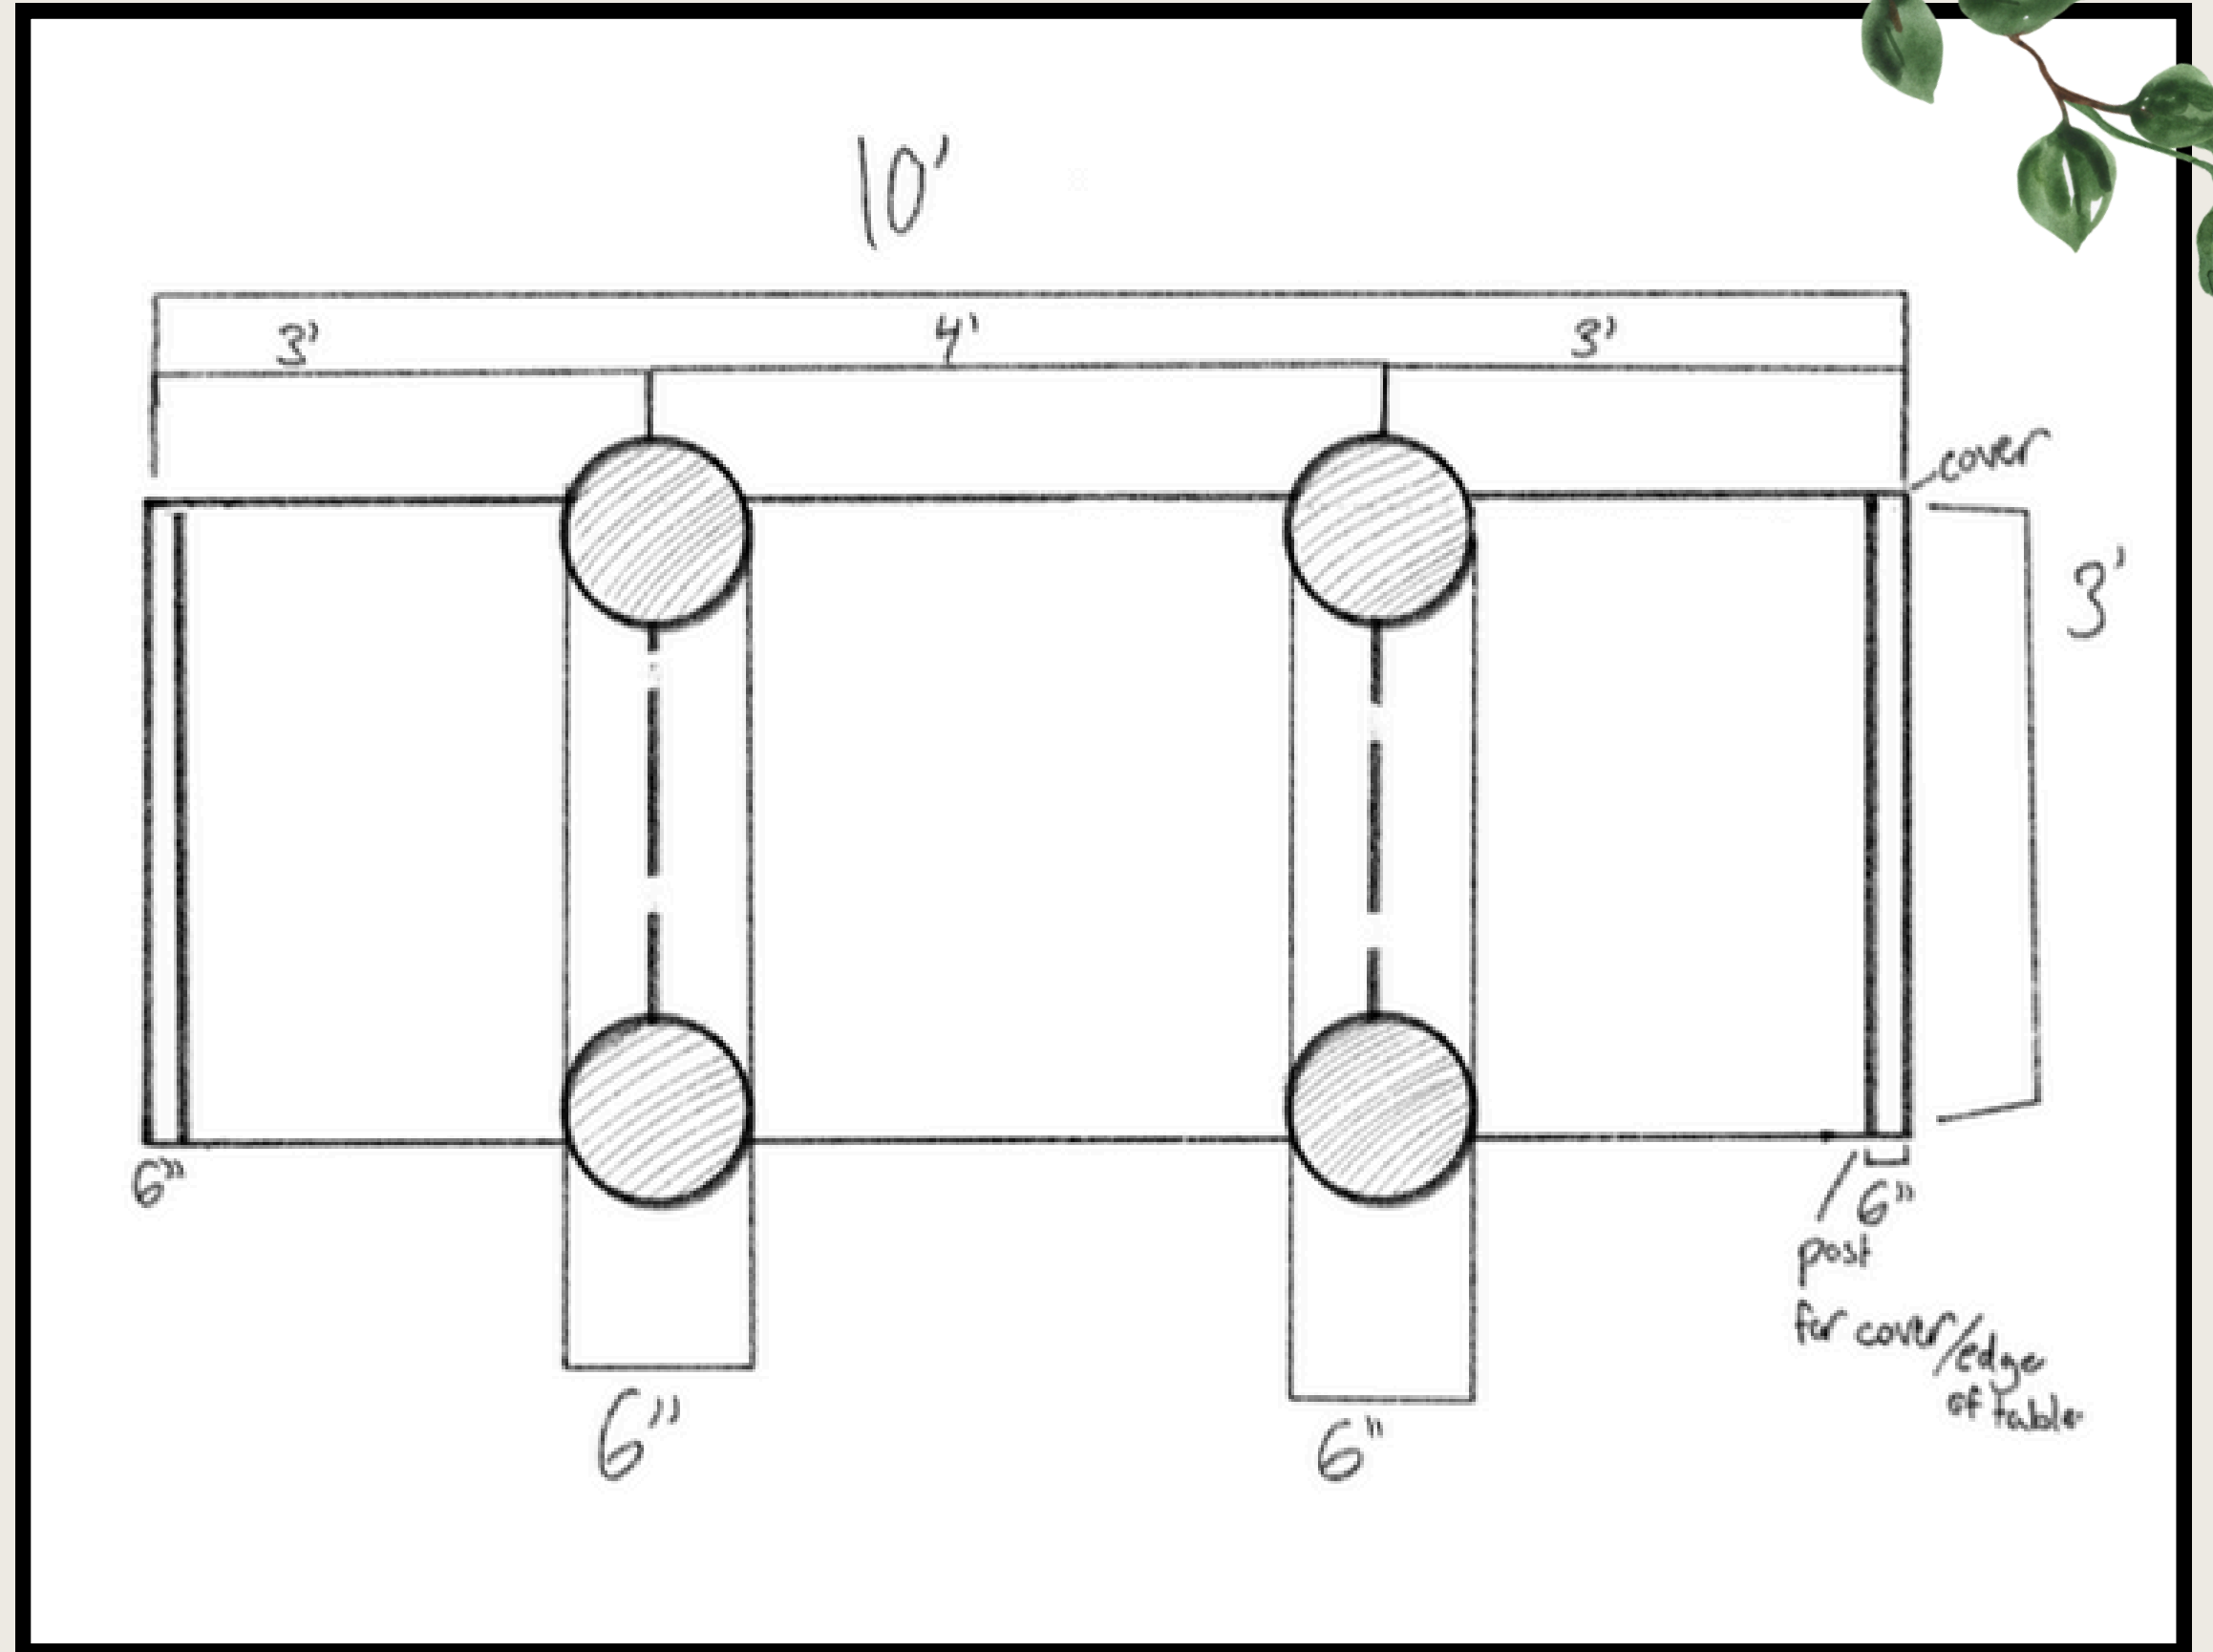

Sketches

Perspective Drawing

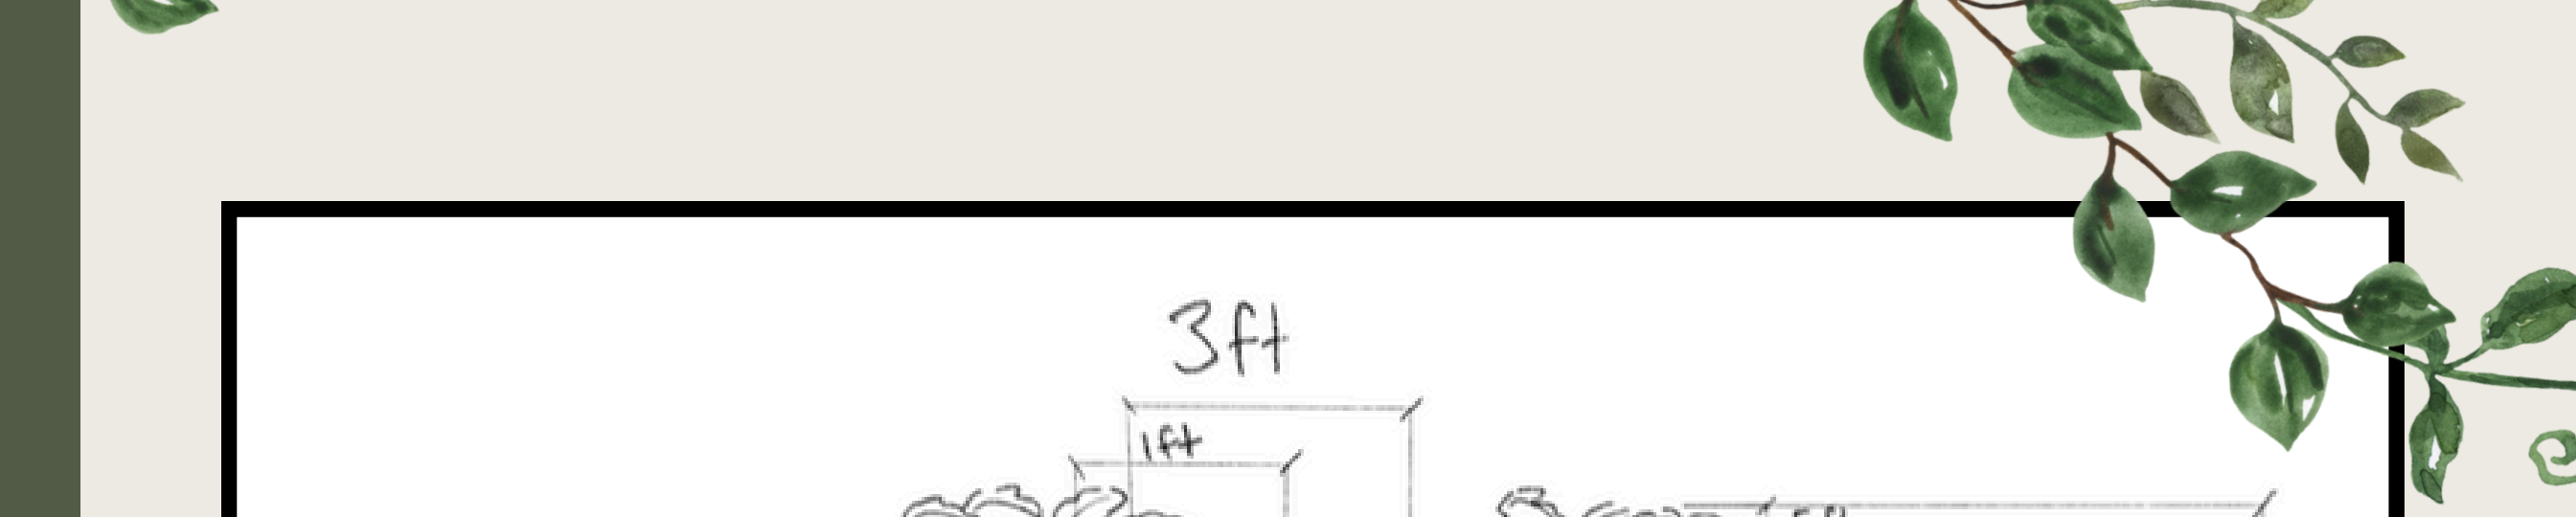

Ground Plan

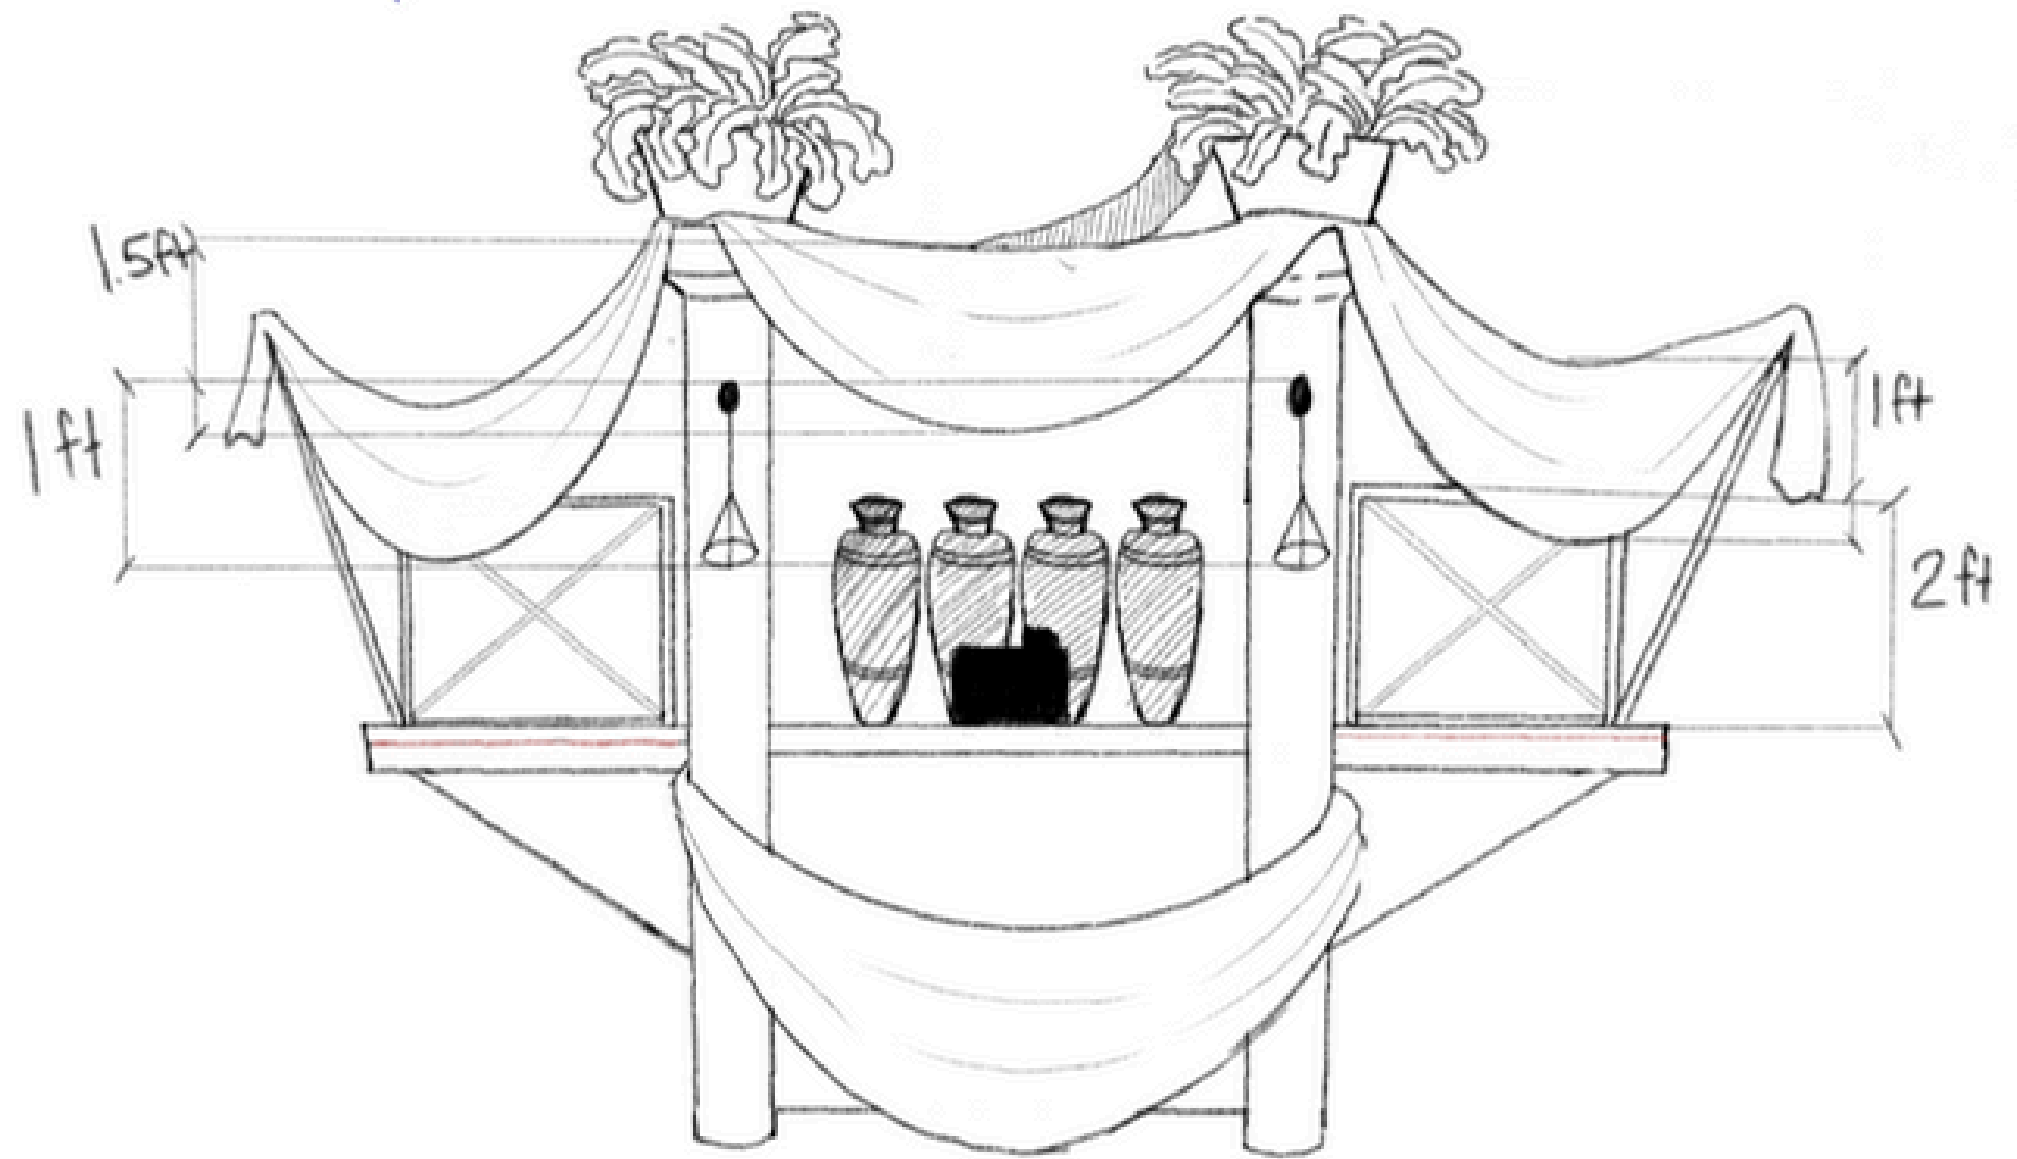

A detailed photograph of a classical column capital and fluted shaft, with green leaves visible in the upper right corner. The column is made of light-colored stone or marble, showing signs of weathering and age. The capital is ornate, featuring a volute (scroll) and acanthus leaves. The shaft is fluted with deep, vertical grooves. The background is a solid, dark green color.

Elevations: Front

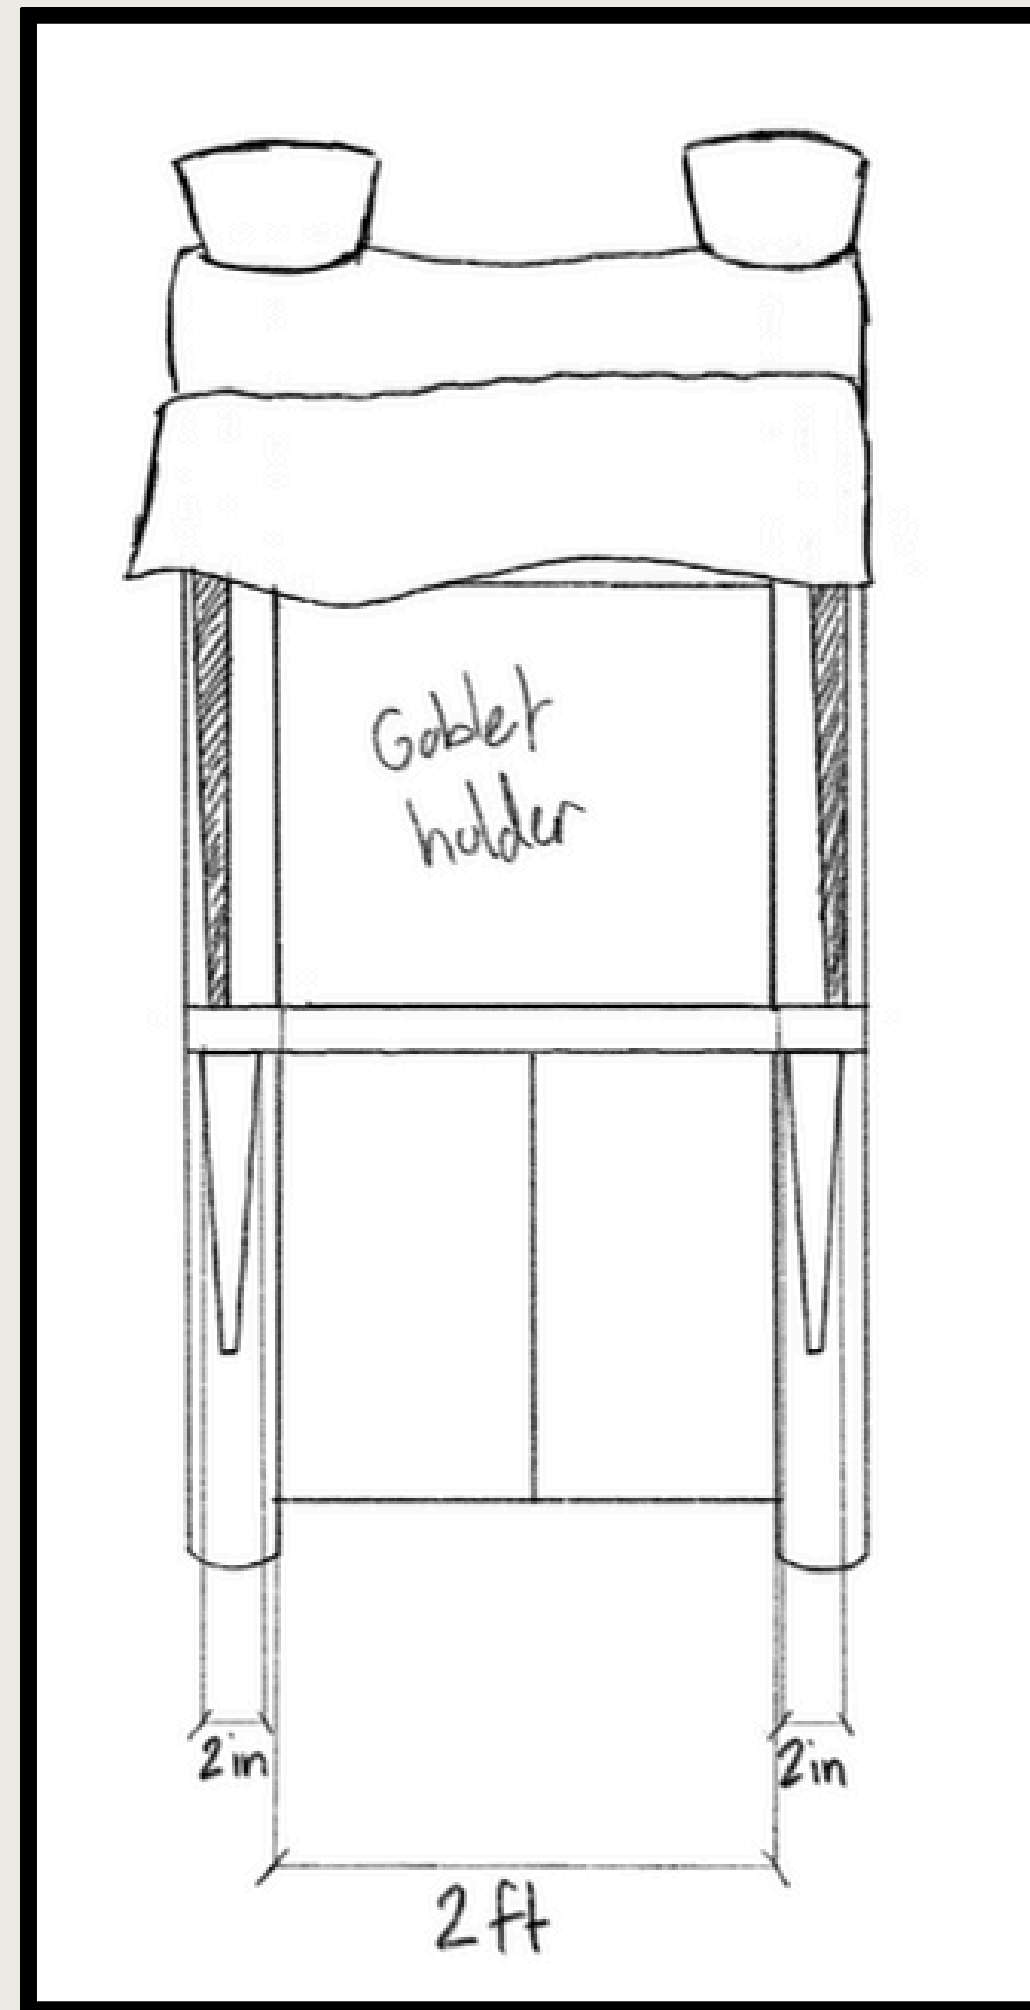

Elevations: Back

★ Same as front/Back applies to front

★ Red = under other object

Side Elevations

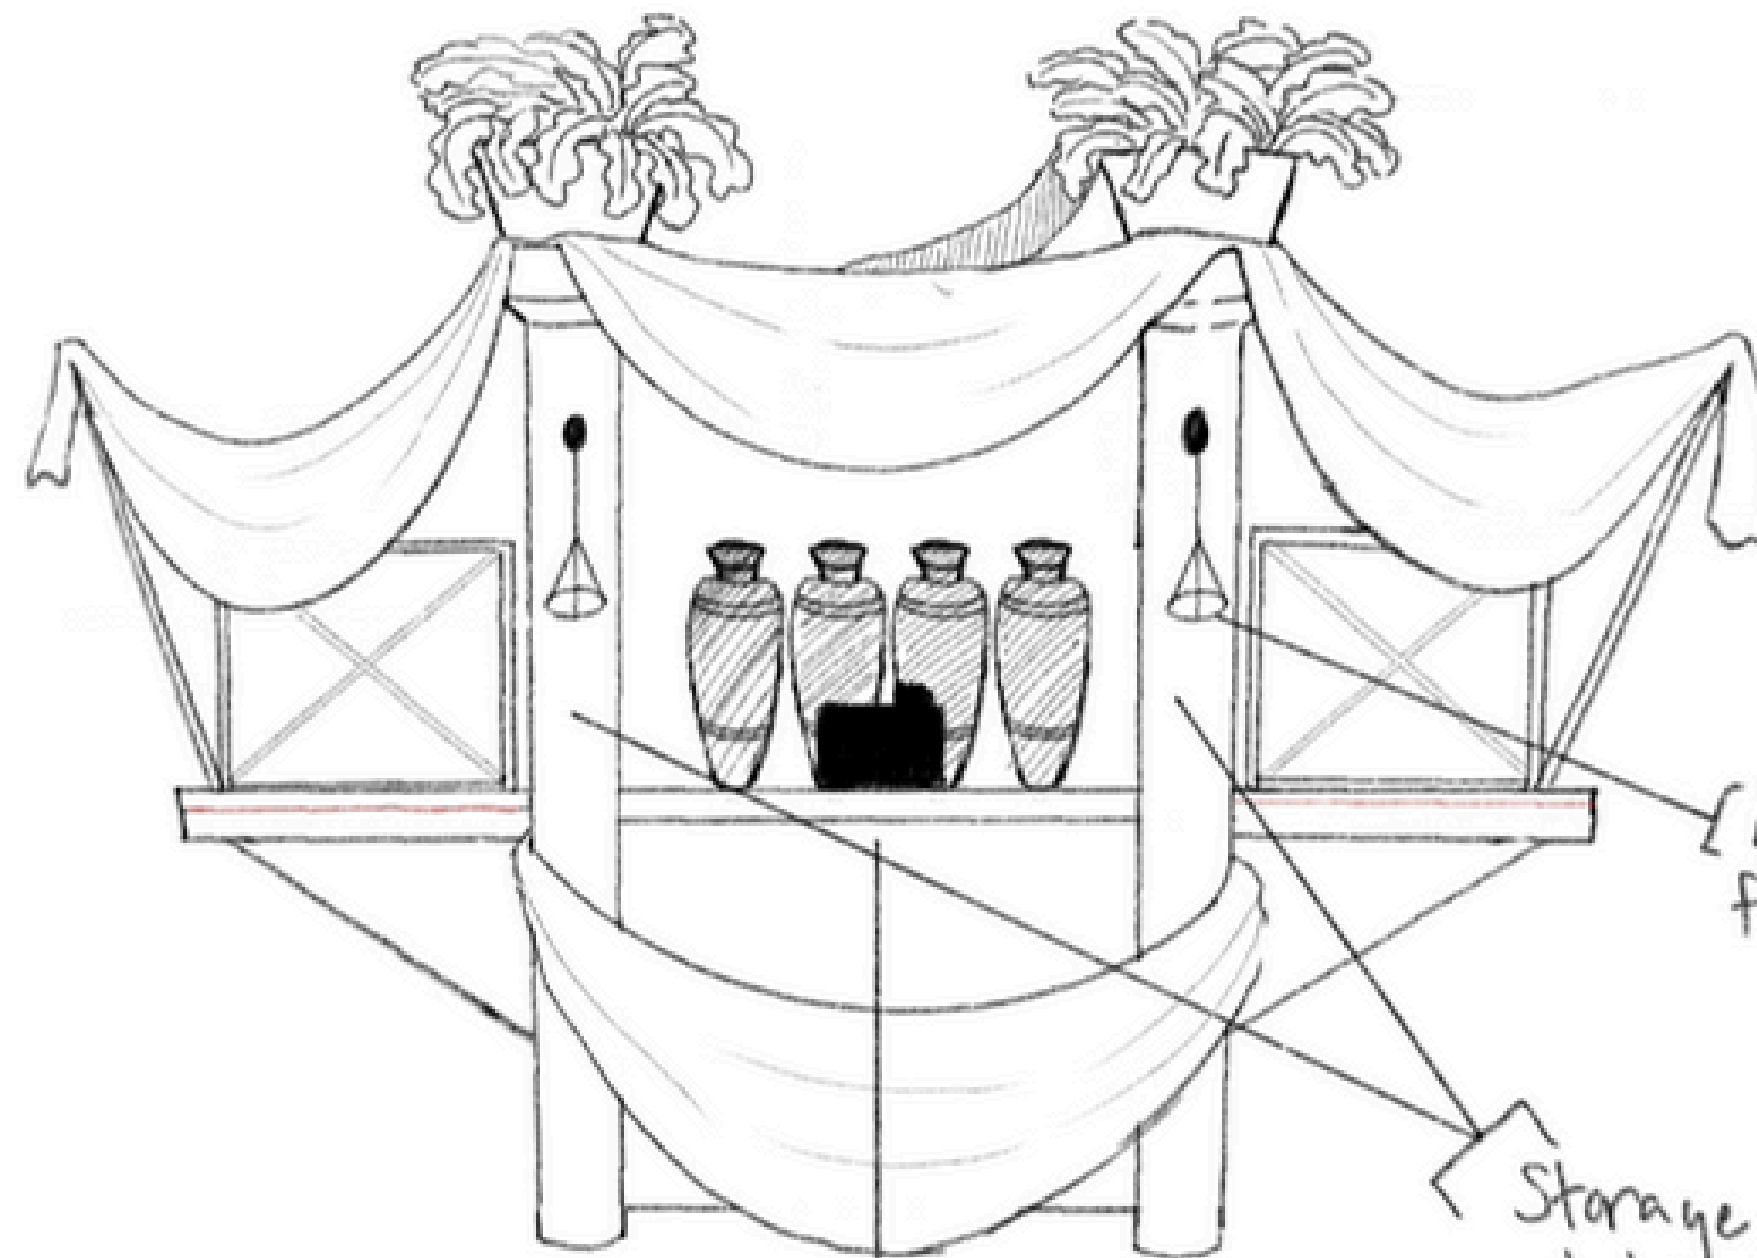

Callouts

Storage/deep shelves
that are push-to-open

Callouts

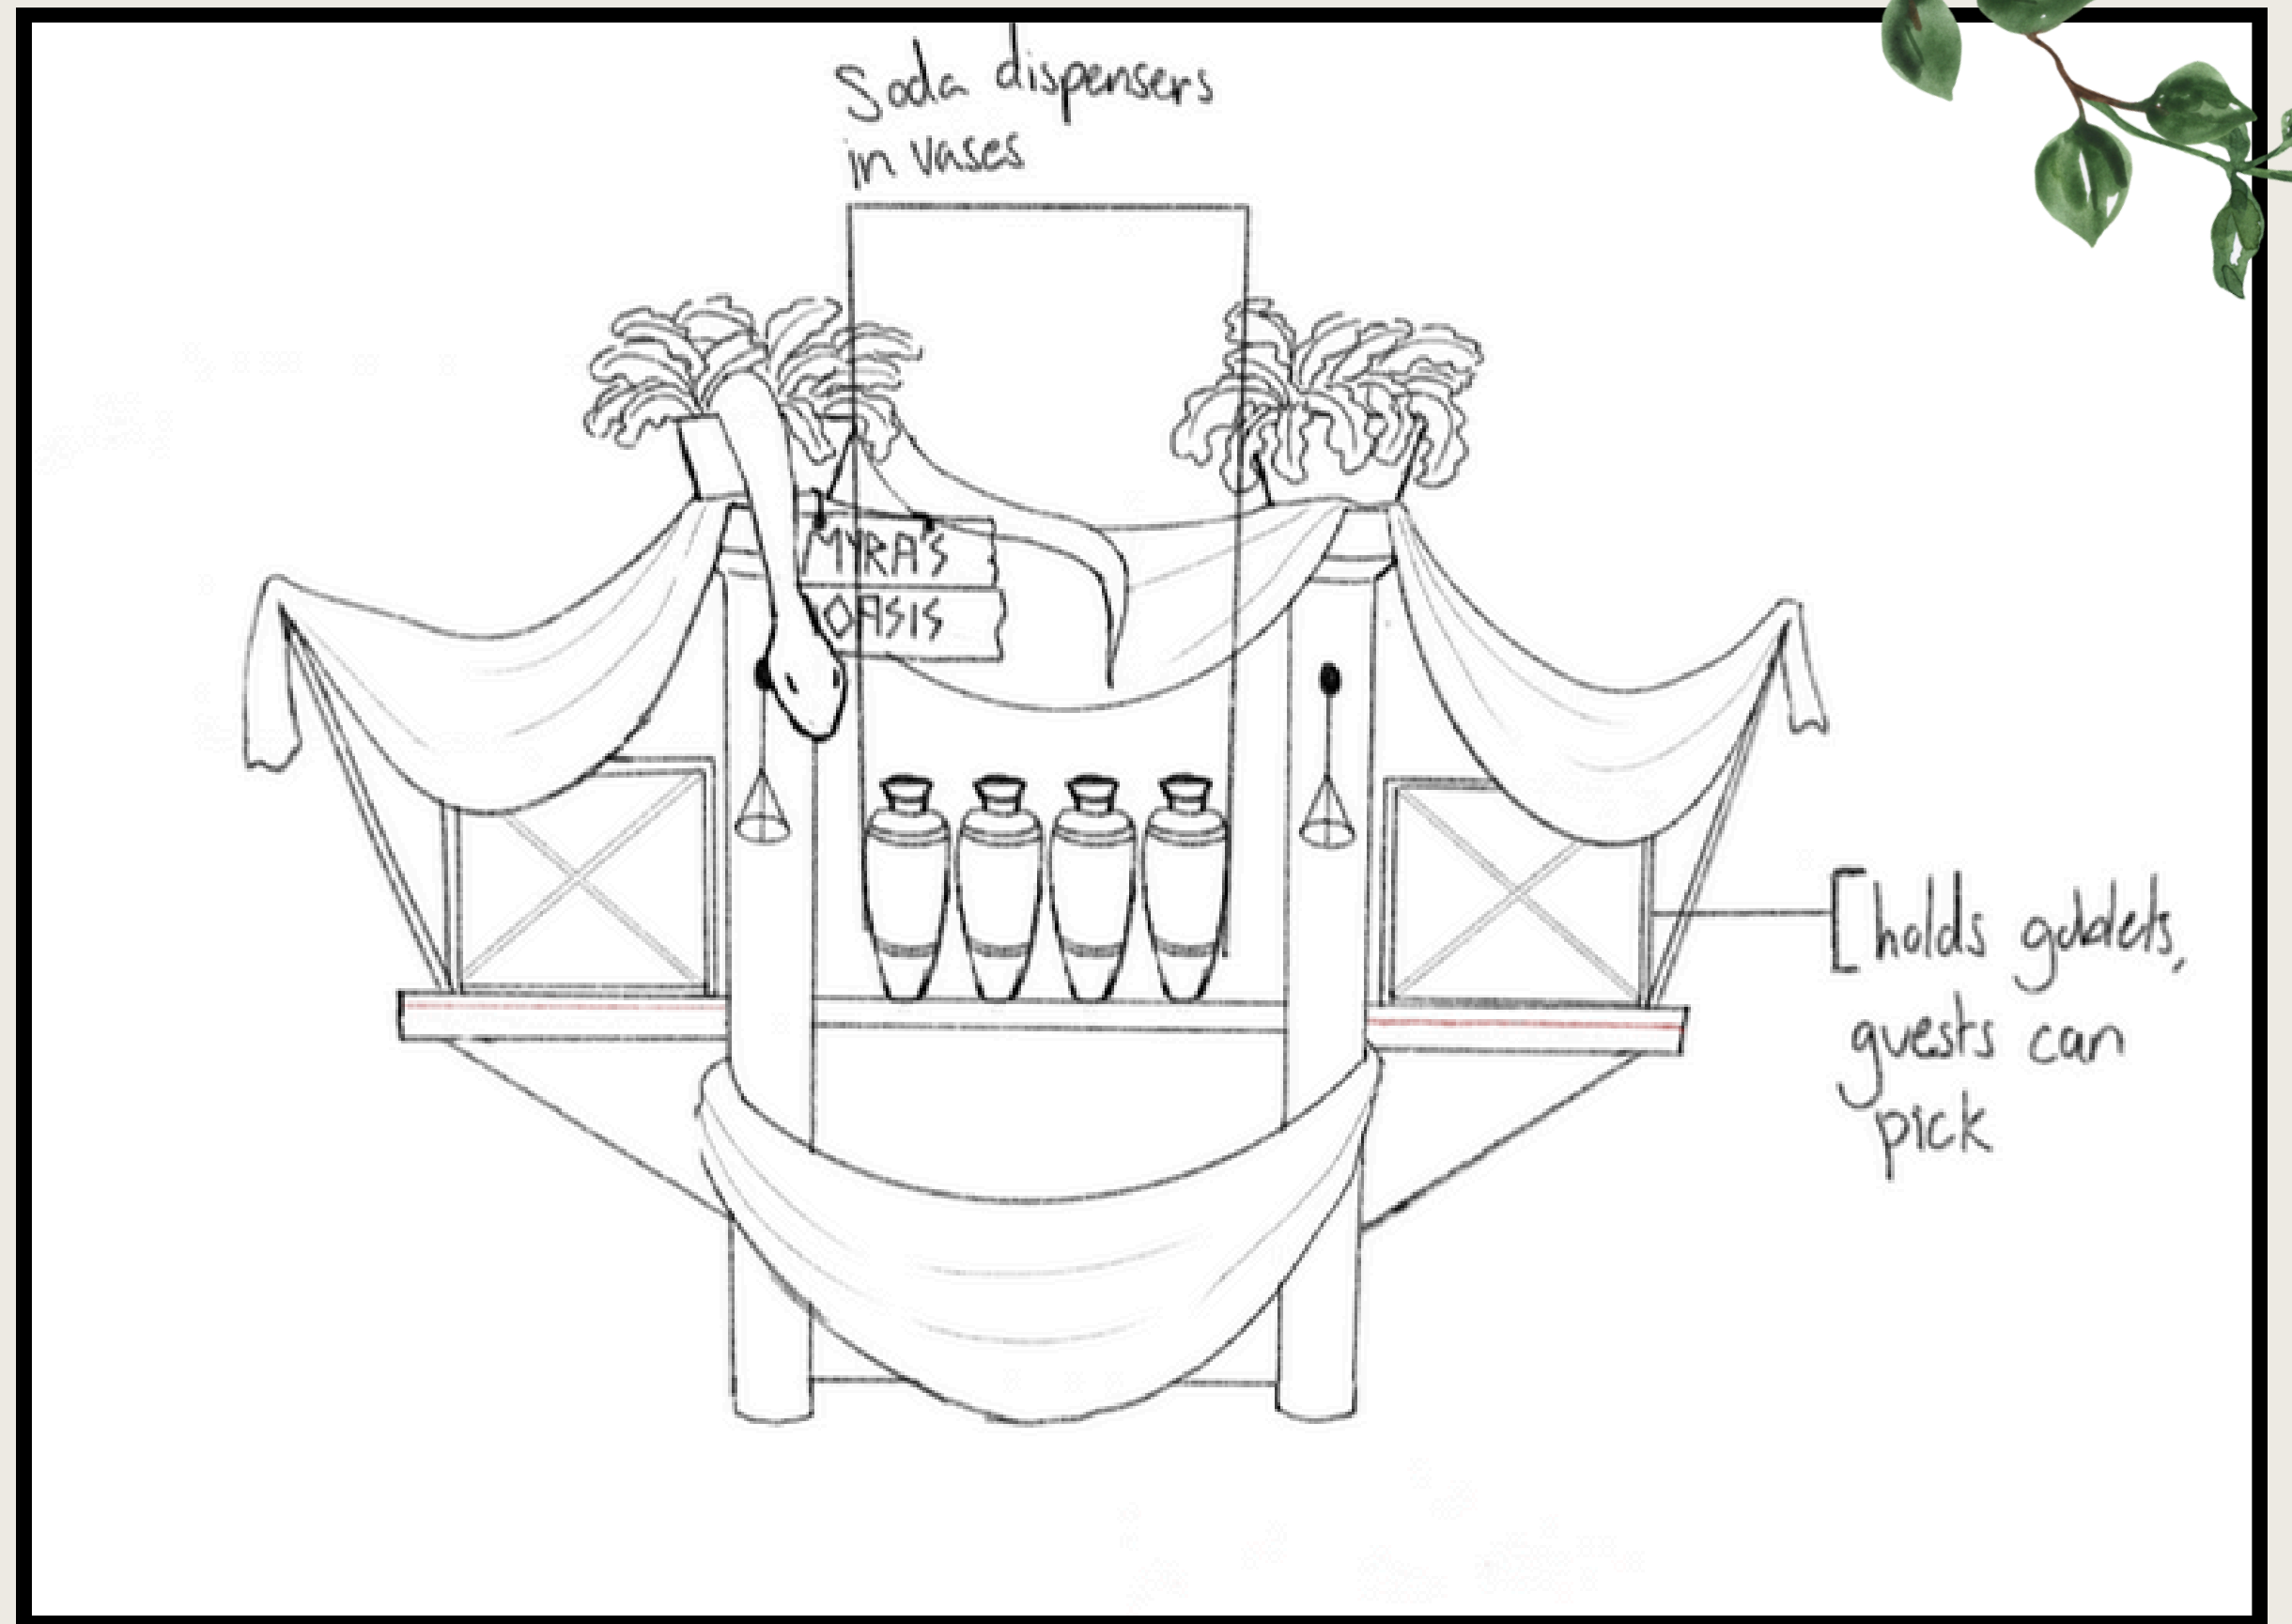

[Lamps should have
flicker LED bulbs

Storage
shelves should be 1ft tall,
built inside the columns, with push-in-to-open doors

check out

Callouts

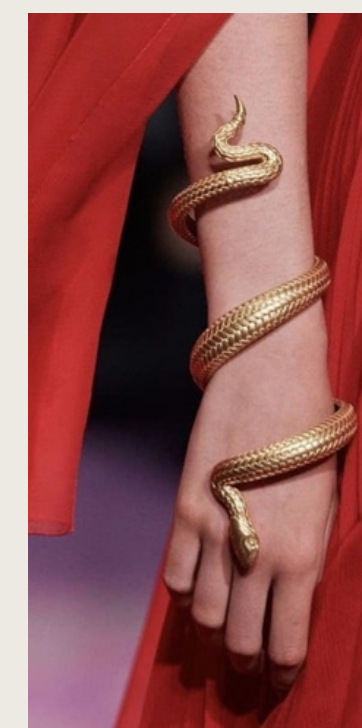

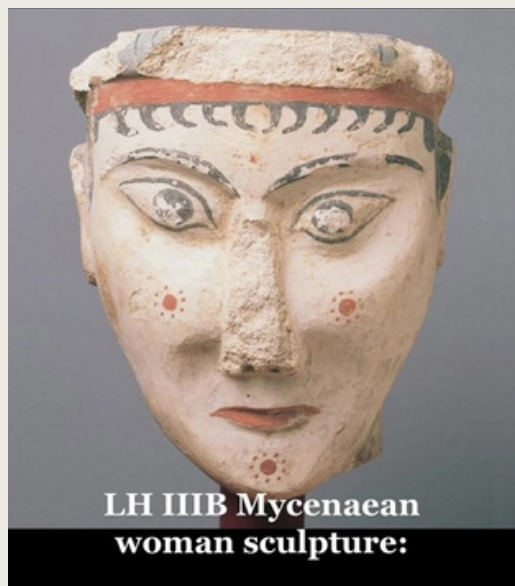

Character Story

Discover deliciously sweet flavors of Myra's Serpent Soda as you discover the adventures that are all around the marketplace! Meet Ladon the serpent and choose your very own goblet to take home!

Character: Myra Makris

Graphics

- Possible Tote Bag Design

- Goblet designs

